Director Zieliński will receive compensation

An epilogue has now been reached in the case of the Szwed Brewery former director against the firm's board of management.

Art. 32 of the President of the Republic of Poland's Regulation on the employment contracts of white-collar workers, which stipulates that the employer has the right to immediately dismiss an employee if he falls ill and the illness exceeds three months, there existed an individual written agreement between the parties.

The first stages of the case are already known to readers. Now, a hearing of the District Court has ordered the Brewery to pay the plaintiff Zieliński 6,750 zł., dismissing the claim for leave pay and the Brewery's counterclaim for eviction from the premises.

Therefore, Mr Zieliński was entitled to one year's notice of termination of his employment. He was entitled to compensation for the remaining nine months.
